<https://www.chinesestandard.net>,2022-12-12 This document specifies general test methods for safety to which electrical equipment shall be subjected after it has been designed. This document applies to the testing related to electrical equipment including type test and routine (exit-factory) test. NOTE: Due to the different types of electric shock protection for electrical equipment, the testing items will be different. For example, there are power supply systems with double insulation structure and extra-low safety voltage.
