A Distant Dream Levi Kaufman, 2008-06-25 A Distant Dream by Levi Kaufman, a historical novel, is set against the vivid backdrop of Medieval Europe and the religious hostility that was its hallmark. In the year 1290, England's twelve thousand Jews became the continent's first community to face expulsion. Despite oppressive and unfair taxes and restrictive living conditions, the Jews had somehow managed to survive and even prosper. Now they were to be forced to abandon their homes and belongings. Where should the uprooted families go? Would any other Christian nations welcome them? Would they be allowed to remain in any one place for more than a few years? Perhaps some tired and idealistic English Jew dreamed of breaking away from Europe and the ever-deepening anguish of his exiled people. Perhaps he spoke to others around him and, together, they make plans. Perhaps there were some who dared to set out for some new land where they could live their lives as Jews. Where they could live undisturbed by the outside world...Marbitz Media

The Collected Stories Leonard Michaels, 2008-07-08 Leonard Michaels was a master of the short story. His collections are among the most admired, influential, and exciting of the last half century. The Collected Stories brings them back into print, from the astonishing debut Going Places (1969) to the uncollected last stories, unavailable since they appeared in The New Yorker, Threepenny Review, and Partisan Review. At every stage in his career, Michaels produced taut, spare tales of sex, love, and other adult intimacies: gossip, argument, friendship, guilt, rage. A fearless writer-destructive, joyful, brilliant, purely creative, in the words of John Hawkes-Michaels probed his characters' motivations with brutal humor and startling frankness; his ear for the vernacular puts him in the company of Philip Roth, Grace Paley, and Bernard Malamud. Remarkable for its compression and cadences, his prose is nothing short of addictive. The Collected Stories is a landmark. Leonard Michaels's stories stand alongside those of his best Jewish contemporaries -- Grace Paley and Philip Roth. -- Mona Simpson, The New York Times Book Review A Shade Too Far: A Humorous Paranormal Women's Fiction Deborah Wilde, 2021-10-18 Featuring a slow burn shifter romance and intelligent snark, this clever mix of urban fantasy and mystery will take you on a wild ride. When Miri steals a demon artifact for a client, she doesn't expect a magic curse. Failure to reverse it means the death of someone close to her, the end of her uneasy alliance with the head vampire, and open season on her family. So that sucks. Meanwhile, her screw-up on a dangerous fact-finding mission may have kicked her sexual tension with the wolf shifter in the balls. At least she's not obsessing over it, since fighting through a maze of mind games, tested loyalties, and secrets is consuming all her energy. Glass half-full, right? Now armed with her trusty to-do list, she's determined to multitask her way to victory like a magic badass. Yaas, Queen. Fans of Jana DeLeon, Robyn Peterman, and KF Breene, will adore Miri, a smart older heroine with zero effs left to give! ~ After one more cursory look, Laurent dropped his hand. "You're sure you're okay?" "Positive. I'm toughening up like aged leather. So, about his idea—" "Wait until we get to Tatiana's." Laurent shook out his curls, which were squished from his helmet, and glanced at my bare legs. "Get dressed. Jeans and proper shoes." "I'm not going on your bike." "You look like you need cheering up and this will do it." His expression was soft, his eyes clouded with concern. Zev's comments came to mind, and I longed to lay my hand on Laurent's stubbled jaw and ask how long he'd been stuck as a wolf, and how he'd come back with this deep well of compassion intact, but I lightly curled my fingers into my palms. "You didn't know I needed cheering up before you got here," I said. "You just don't want to ride in my car." "That's always true," he said, "but you were distracted over something yesterday. Well?" He held the helmet out. I rubbed a hand over my lips. Drive through annoying traffic, obsessing over Sadie and how dangerous the Wise Brothers would be, or let this wolf give me a wild ride. Phrasing. Laurent blinked at something on the small table in my foyer, and doing a terrible job of not laughing, picked up the mug that said "I Love to Wrap Both My Hands Around It and Swallow." My cheeks flamed. I'd totally forgotten about the discarded item. I reached out to grab it. "Give it back." He tapped the ceramic, holding the mug out of reach. "An older woman with questionable morals. How intriguing." He leaned close with a wicked grin. "Admit you want to go for a ride, Mitzi." ~ Let's get you reading!
