RMIT PUBLISHING

Quant by Quant Mary Quant,2018-09-25 Originally published in 1966, Quant by Quant is the hugely entertaining story of Mary Quant’s early career and life with husband and business partner Alexander Plunket Greene. After opening the groundbreaking Bazaar boutique on the King’s Road in 1955, Quant soared to international fame with her brand of witty fashion style which fitted perfectly with modern life about town. Just as her signature styles have become synonymous with the pop culture of the swinging sixties, her joyful, evocative autobiography captures the world in which she found inspiration – and which she ultimately helped to define and change.

Mobile Landscapes Richard Black,Martyn Hook,2006

38 South Nigel Bertram,Shane Murray,2005 38 South is the document of record for urban-focused architectural research from the School of Architecture and Design at RMIT University. In this issue the publication assumes its new role of presenting research from the Urban Architecture Laboratory. The UAL was established in 2002 with the explicit aim of providing a specialised research environment for intensive and focussed architectural research that engages with contemporary urban issues. This edition of 38 South is a progress report on the activities of UAL over its first two and a half years. As such this body of work from candidates in the program provides both reflective and prospective interpretations of our evolving understanding of the role that the Laboratory can play. (Ed.).

Plastic Green Pia Ednie Brown,2009 Summary: This book gathers a series of design research projects produced in 2007, that investigate alternative ways of constructing our relations with our environment. Environment is a nebulous term that often implies nature. It is implied here too, but only in the sense of the nature of complex, dynamic relations. This includes that other called culture, where we are embedded in environment: we as complex sub-entities both distinguishable and inseparable from an encompassing complex, dynamic entity called environment. If green has become another word for environmental or, of the – environment, then we are part of its hue--Provided by Publisher.

Fluctuating Borders Rosalea Monacella,SueAnne Ware,2007 Fluctuating Borders is a publication which re-considers the possibilities for international borders. In this volume, designers and theorists from multiple but cognate disciplines such as planning, architecture, landscape architecture, urban design and the visual arts have reflected on and critiqued notions of memory, fluctuation and emergence.

A Skilled Hand and Cultivated Mind Harriet Edquist,Elizabeth Grierson,2008

Opportunistic Urbanism Diego Ramirez-Lovering,2008 The work presented here is the result of an academic exchange undertaken in 2006 between the architecture program at RMIT University and Escuela Superior de Arquitectura in Guadalajara, Mexico. The book is the result of a process of urban interrogation, an attempt to make some sense of the activities that shape the city.--Preface.

Five Projects Melanie Dodd,Fiona Harrison,Esther Ruth Charlesworth,2012 Live projects engage with real communities and are an increasing mode of practice within university design studio teaching. Such projects reflect a growing social and ethical commitment to expand the role of design education beyond the academy. The Live Projects collection of essays represents a diverse group of case-studies of university-led live design projects, gathered into a critical mass of design research that sits between design, social science and building. The focus is on a range of live projects as the vehicle for describing the aspirations, rationale, outcomes, and ultimately speculating on the effectiveness, of this specific teaching model. The case-studies offer a range of local, national and international examples selected to act as benchmarks or critical inspirations for the further development of successful models of design action, and to provide discussion on live project models within the university setting.

Architectural Projections Andrew E Benjamin,2012 Andrew Benjamin’s essays in Architectural Projections have a specific remit: their concern is the history and theory of architecture. However, rather than work with the assumed distance between architecture as a design practice on the one hand and architectural history and theory on the other, they have a different orientation. The essays form part of a larger project driven by the possibility of reconfiguring history and theory such that they exist for design rather than being of design.

At Home in Sprawl Aaron Betsky,2011 In more than two decades of writing, Aaron Betsky has used his knowledge of architecture and urbanism to argue for the ways in which buildings, cities and landscapes help us understand where we are, where we have come from, and where we are going. He argues for modernist design as a way of making ourselves at home in the ever-changing world of modernity.

Melab RNA Eba Kalak T P A R Ma Kalpana , Pradyumn Kumar,2005 An unprecedented inter-cultural arts project called Tramjatra has since 1996 brought together artists and the tramways communities of Melbourne (Australia) & Kolkata (Calcutta, India) to explore their cities through the medium of tramways. Through a time when Kolkata s struggling tramways have faced a persistent threat of closure and the operation of Melbourne s tramways has been privatised and automated, the Tramjatra project has provoked a broader, globally oriented engagement in what it is to move and be moved in contemporary urban life. The book explores this relationship between the movement afforded by tramways as a mode of public transport, and the contemporary social, political, economic and creative forces of movement that are manifested in the relation between these two contemporary cultures of tramways. Supplemented with stunning visuals, this unique volume offers a journey through two cities and a contemporary relation between them via the medium of tramways.

Snails Live in Houses Too Sue Elliott,Sue Emmett,1997

Porosity Richard Goodwin,2011 Porosity: The Architecture of Invagination changes our view of cities as collections of individual buildings. By prejudicing public space and finding previously undefined public spaces within them, chiasitic space, it presents ideas for a radically transformed western city. By studying, defining and indexing these spaces, Goodwin has found what a building desires to do next in its determination to facilitate new technologies, new building to building connections and demands on its program.
