Surviving Your Thirties Robin Madell,2013-09 By the thirties, you're supposed to have your relationship, your home, your job, go on your vacations. It doesn't always work that way. - Jennifer, 39, Chicago, IL In the spirit of Stud Terkel's Working and Michael Apted's 7 Up documentary series, Surviving Your Thirties provides a fascinating look at the experience of American thirty-somethings-in their own words. Based on award-winning journalist Robin Madell's experience as founder and facilitator of the Life After 30 Salon in New York and San Francisco, as well as her interviews with hundreds of people in their thirties across the United States, here you'll get inside the minds of thirty-somethings nationwide as they explore the hopes and challenges of middle adulthood. Through uncensored voices, the true stories of daily reality in Surviving Your Thirties zero in on what's most essential to people in their thirties today, helping adults of all ages make sense of their own path through the decade and move more smoothly into later years. Robin is a contributing writer for U.S. News & World Report and a corporate writer and communications consultant for senior executives, entrepreneurs, and thought leaders in diverse industries. She contributes frequently to the national dialogue on generational trends, women's leadership, career advancement, and diversity issues.

My 30's and 40's Childhood Ray Wooster,2019-11-28 Ray Wooster shares memories of his early years growing up in Greenford and Northolt, greater London in the 1930s and 1940s. Telling of 'making do', the days before the NHS and being evacuated to relatives in Swansea during the 1939-1942 war provide an insight into another era. These memories, gently expressed, are suitable for readers of all ages.
