Selective Searching Over the Networked Computer Science Technical Report Library ,1997 The Networked Computer Science Technical Reports Library (NCSTRL) is an intern ational collection of computer science technical reports from CS departments and industrial and government research laboratories, made available for non-com mercial and educational use[1]. The overall purpose of the thesis project is to increase the speed of information retrieval within NCSTRL by implementing a selective author server, which would modify queries to be directed to select relevant sites rather than the entire NCSTRL collection. Studying the collection reveals a low distribution of author publications at multiple sites. Comparing the speed of a directed query, a query where specific sites are select to be searched, versus an undirected query, a query where all sites are to be searched, clearly justifies the need for a selective author server to perform this transformation. A directed query performs approximately 2.4 times faster than an undirected query. A Perl script downloads the author information and transforms that data into a text database. The selective author server, implemented in C++, loads this information into a hash table data structure for fast access. When an NCSTRL search involve. The manipulation time of this transformation is an average 4.5 milliseconds, significantly less than the time difference between a directed query and an undirected one. Thus, it is favorable to have a selective author server linked to the NCSTRL search engines an author and has the 'search all o rganizations' button depressed the undirected query is sent to the selective author server for transformation.

Computer Theology Timothy Jurgensen,Bertrand du Castel,Timothy M. Jurgensen,2008 Computers are complex tools of the human species. To make them work well for us, we have to specify their actions in very great detail. When properly instructed, networks of computers take on the trappings of human social orders derived from the physiological characteristics and capabilities of our species. To create a social order, we engage in grouping mechanisms through which the actions of the individuals within the group are influenced. From a technical perspective, such grouping mechanisms form the trust environments within which we can effect policy. Historically, the most comprehensive such environments have been formed by religions. Within a specific religion, the policy framework is established by a statement of theology. So, if we connect all the dots, when we want to tell our computers how to act in a manner paralleling human social orders, we must define for them a theology. So goes the rationale explored in great detail by the authors of Computer Theology. Based on their combined tenure of almost a century working in the realms of computer systems and their ubiquitous networks, du Castel and Jurgensen have expressed both social and computer systems through the same concepts. The result offers a unique perspective on the interconnection between people and machines that we have come to understand as the World Wide Web.

The Reality of Christianity: Being a Christian-Believer Lida,2019-04-17 What-The-What Is Going On At Church Have you ever been in a room and everyone is smiling but you're not. You feel as though something is missing and wrong? Today people are esteeming culture, tradition, and ethnicity above the Church with lukewarm standards and dismissal of any Scripture that requires humility, meekness, and change in character and behavior. The Church is missing accountability for Righteous living. You know there is confusion when people try to make Christianity synonymous with other religions. People are trying to merge Christianity with other ideologies and beliefs, in order to substantiate lifestyle choices, root comes from the pit of Hell. Christianity is unique and set apart from all other faiths and religions. Christianity has the GODhead; a personal Saviour, Jesus Christ (fully GOD and fully human), the indwelling power of the Holy Spirit inside of Christian-Believers, and GOD the Father who is the mastermind over all things living and non-living. The GODhead is all power, all present, and all knowing. As Christian-

Believers, we must come out of complacency to be an example of Jesus Christ to the world because people are lost. They need to know about the path of Christianity to the GODhead. Christianity is the way to bring order to all of this chaos and show the right path to everlasting life. I pray that this book will bring you to the Cross and strengthen your walk in Christianity. Motivate yourself to put Faith N Motion and begin to show What-The-What you are doing by Faith because without Faith it is impossible to please GOD. This book is written by Faith.

  Internet Law Chris Reed,2004-10-07 The common fallacy regarding cyberspace is that the Internet is a new jurisdiction, in which none of the existing rules and regulations apply. However, all the actors involved in an Internet transaction live in one or more existing jurisdictions, so rather than being unregulated, the Internet is arguably highly regulated. Worse, much of this law and regulation is contradictory and difficult, or impossible, to comply with. This book takes a global view of the fundamental legal issues raised by the advent of the Internet as an international communications mechanism. Legal and other materials are integrated to support the discussion of how technological, economic and political factors are shaping the law governing the Internet. Global trends in legal issues are addressed and the effectiveness of potential mechanisms for legal change that are applicable to Internet law are also examined. Of interest to students and practitioners in computer and electronic commerce law.

  The Ottoman East in the Nineteenth Century Ali Sipahi,Dzovinar Derderian,Yasar Tolga Cora,2016-06-10 The Ottoman East what is also called Western Armenia, Northern Kurdistan or Eastern Anatolia compared to other peripheries of the Ottoman Empire, has received very little attention in Ottoman historiography. So-called taboo subjects such as the fate of Ottoman Armenians and the Kurdish Question during the latter years of the Ottoman Empire have contributed to this dearth of analysis. By integrating the Armenian and Kurdish elements into the study of the Ottoman Empire, this book seeks to emphasise the interaction of different ethno-religious groups. As an area where Ottoman centralization faced unsurpassable challenges, the Ottoman East offers an ideal opportunity to examine an alternative social and political model for imperial governance and the means by which provincial rule interacted with the Ottoman centre. Discussing vital issues across this geographical area, such as trade routes, regional economic trends, migration patterns and the molding of local and national identities, this book offers a unique and fresh approach to the history and politics of modernization and empire in the wider region.
