The Science and Art of Writing Life Insurance Melvin Young,2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1910 edition. Excerpt: ... LESSON VIII THE SCIENCE OF CREDIT AS APPLIED TO INITIAL PREMIUMS The Science of Credit as Applied to Initial Premiums The various life insurance companies have different rules governing the settlement of initial premiums on delivery of policies. Some companies require cash settlements exclusively, whereas other companies frequently accept notes in lieu of cash, providing the solicitor guarantees to pay the examination fee, term rate, or net premium in event the note is not paid. The majority of solicitors for all of the regular Ordinary companies accept notes, more or less, in lieu of cash on delivery of policy, and they advance the cash premium to the company as a personal and private transaction. Many of the contingencies that arise to cause the non-payment of notes cause the non-payment of renewals, regardless of whether the initial settlements were by cash or note; hence, the fundamental truths in this lesson are as essential to insure the payment of renewals as they are to insure the payment of notes. A solicitor should exercise the same degree of caution when establishing business on a cash basis, to insure the payment of renewals which involve a profit or loss to a policy-holder and company, as he would exercise in establishing business on a credit basis to insure the payment of notes which involve a profit or loss to him. The percentage of a solicitor's unpaid renewals on business procured exclusively on a cash basis will approximate the percentage of his unpaid notes accepted on a credit basis; hence, the payment of renewals and notes is contingent upon the method by which the business is procured and delivered. Settlements.--Cash on delivery of policy is an ideal settlement, but, like other ideals, it cannot always be attained....

The Man from Enterprise Seymour Shubin,1998 In celebration of the 100th anniversary of the first Coca-Cola bottling plant in Chattanooga, Tennessee, former Coca-Cola ad man Mike Cheatham has compiled a fond look back at the Georgia's bottlers and the impact they made on their communities, then and now. Beginning with an exploration of Benjamin Thomas and Joseph Whitehead of Chattanooga, who in 1899 secured the first bottling rights from Coca-Cola Company founder Asa Candler, Cheatham goes on to examine several key Georgia bottlers: -- The Montgomery Family of Atlanta and the parallel rise of their bottling company and the city during the 1950s and '60s; -- The Barron Family of Rome and their substantial nurturing of and investment in local institutions, such as Berry College, Darlington School and Shorter College; - - The Roberts of Columbus, who contributed greatly to Baptist institutions of higher learning, such as Mercer University; -- The Samses of Athens and for the real sense of family they imparted to their employees; - The Haley Family of Athens, and their successful divestiture of bottling profits into the Albany community; and -- The Cobbs of LaGrange-West Point, known throughout the industry for their marketing innovations and throughout the community for their plant tours for schoolchildren. Also discussed in depth is Delony Sledge, the Coca-Cola advertising director whose classic campaigns (including Things Go Better With Coke) defined the drink's golden age of advertising and who mobilized the bottlers behind his work. Your Friendly Neighbor concludes with an examination of the bottlers as a whole and the foundations they founded and The Coca-Cola Company leaders who inspired them to leave mark upon their respective communities.
