The Making of Chinese-Sinophone Literatures as World Literature Kuei-fen Chiu, Yingjin Zhang, 2021-12-21 In The Making of Chinese-Sinophone Literatures as World Literature, Kuei-fen Chiu and Yingjin Zhang aim to bridge the distance between the scholarship of world literature and that of Chinese and Sinophone literary studies. This edited volume advances research on world literature by bringing in new developments in Chinese/Sinophone literatures and adds a much-needed new global perspective on Chinese literary studies beyond the traditional national literature paradigm and its recent critique by Sinophone studies. In addition to a critical mapping of the domains of world literature, Sinophone literature, and world literature in Chinese to delineate the nuanced differences of these three disciplines, the book addresses the issues of translation, genre, and the impact of media and technology on our understanding of “literature” and “literary prestige.” It also provides critical studies of the complicated ways in which Chinese and Sinophone literatures are translated, received, and reinvested across various genres and media, and thus circulate as world literature. The issues taken up by the contributors to this volume promise fruitful polemical interventions in the studies of world literature from the vantage point of Chinese and Sinophone literatures. “An outstanding volume full of insights, with chapters by leading scholars from an admirable range of perspectives, Chiu and Zhang’s The Making of Chinese-Sinophone Literatures as World Literature expertly integrates Chinese and Sinophone studies with world literature scholarship, opening numerous possibilities for future analyses of literature, media, and cultural history.” –Karen L. Thornber, Harvard University “This book is, at once, the best possible introduction to recent debates on world literature from the perspective of Chinese-Sinophone literatures, and a summa critica that thinks through their transcultural drives, global travels, varied worldings, and translational forces. The comparative perspectives gathered here accomplish the necessary and urgent task of reconfiguring both the idea of the world in world literature and the ways we study the inscriptions of Chinese-Sinophone literatures in the world.” –Mariano Siskind, Harvard University

Chengdu Teahouse Xiaozhu He, 2023-11-15 Chengdu, a city intertwined with teahouse culture, holds an indelible connection to its residents. For centuries, the people of Chengdu have cherished their love for tea, a tradition that endures to this day. In this captivating book, poet He Xiaozhu offers a tranquil narrative that unveils the fascinating world of teahouses in old Chengdu. Through his discerning eyes and gentle prose, readers with an affinity for teahouse culture will resonate deeply with its essence. Comprising six engaging chapters, this book takes you on a captivating journey through legends, cherished memories, the art of lidded-bowl tea, explorations, the captivating world of mahjong, and the allure of tea atop Meng Mountain. Starting from the origins of teahouses, it unravels a tapestry of diverse teahouses, vibrant characters, and the intriguing interplay between tea and mahjong. Ultimately, it illuminates the rich history and cultural significance of tea, presenting an exquisite portrayal of teahouse life in Chengdu. A perfect choice for tea enthusiasts and cultural aficionados alike, it offers an unforgettable glimpse into the soul of Chengdu's teahouse tradition.

The Teahouse under Socialism Di Wang, 2018-06-15 To understand a city fully, writes Di Wang, we must observe its most basic units of social life. In The Teahouse under Socialism, Wang does just that, arguing that the teahouses of Chengdu, the capital of Sichuan Province, are some of the most important public spaces—perfect sites for examining the social and economic activities of everyday Chinese. Wang looks at the transformation of these teahouses from private businesses to collective ownership and how state policy and the proprietors' response to it changed the overall economic and social structure of the city. He uses this transformation to illuminate broader trends in China's urban public life from 1950 through the end of the Cultural Revolution and into the post-Mao reform era. In doing so, The Teahouse under Socialism charts the fluctuations in fortune of this ancient cultural institution and analyzes how it survived, and even thrived, under bleak conditions. Throughout, Wang asks such questions as: Why and how did state power intervene in the operation of small businesses? How was socialist entertainment established in a local society? How did the well-known waves of political contestation and struggle in China change Chengdu's teahouses and public life? In the end, Wang argues, the answers to such questions enhance our understanding of public life and political culture in the Communist state.

Xiao Zhu, Little Pig Katherine Chew, 2021-06-18 A bilingual read-along book for children ages 4-9 this story tells of a timid piglet who uses his powerful snout to become a soccer star (in Chinese with pinyin pronunciation guides; retold in English). When this talent does not save him from being sent to the market, he escapes into the woods. Years later, at a family gathering at the old farm, he becomes a hero when he saves a small child. Reunited with his old friends, he observes modestly that of course friends help each other, so why are they fussing over him? Written in the style of a Chinese fable, this original story is built on the timeless themes of friendship and loyalty, and follows the read-along tradition of Kipling's Just So Stories, accompanied by lush color pencil-and-watercolor illustrations.

Malware Analysis Using Artificial Intelligence and Deep Learning Mark Stamp, Mamoun Alazab, Andrii Shalaginov, 2020-12-20 □ This book is focused on the use of deep learning (DL) and artificial intelligence (AI) as tools to advance the fields of malware detection and analysis. The individual chapters of the book deal with a wide variety of state-of-the-art AI and DL techniques, which are applied to a number of challenging malware-related problems. DL and AI based approaches to malware detection and analysis are largely data driven and hence minimal expert domain knowledge of malware is needed. This book fills a gap between the emerging fields of DL/AI and malware analysis. It covers a broad range of modern and practical DL and AI techniques, including frameworks and development tools enabling the audience to innovate with cutting-edge research advancements in a multitude of malware (and closely related) use cases.

Computer Security – ESORICS 2017 Simon N. Foley, Dieter Gollmann, Einar Snekkenes, 2017-09-01 The two-volume set, LNCS 10492 and LNCS 10493 constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 22nd European Symposium on Research in Computer Security, ESORICS 2017, held in Oslo, Norway, in September 2017. The 54 revised full papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 338 submissions. The papers address issues such as data protection; security protocols; systems; web and network security; privacy; threat modeling and detection; information flow; and security in emerging applications such as cryptocurrencies, the Internet of Things and automotive.

Writing and Materiality in China Judith T. Zeitlin, 2020-10-26 Speaking about Chinese writing entails thinking about how writing speaks through various media. In the guises of the written character and its imprints, traces, or ruins, writing is more than textuality. The goal of this volume is to consider the relationship of writing to materiality in China's literary history and to ponder the physical aspects of the production and circulation of writing. To speak of the thing-ness of writing is to understand it as a thing in constant motion, transported from one place or time to another, one genre or medium to another, one person or public to another. Thinking about writing as the material product of a culture shifts the emphasis from the author as the creator and ultimate arbiter of a text's meaning to the editors, publishers, collectors, and readers through whose hands a text is reshaped, disseminated, and given new meanings. By yoking writing and materiality, the contributors to this volume aim to bypass the tendency to oppose form and content, words and things, documents and artifacts, to rethink key issues in the interpretation of Chinese literary and visual culture.

Scattered Sand Hsiao-Hung Pai, 2013-06-04 Each year, 200 million workers from China's vast rural interior travel between cities and provinces in search of employment: the largest human migration in history. This indispensable army of labour accounts for half of China's GDP, but is an unorganized workforce-'scattered sand', in Chinese parlance-and the most marginalized and impoverished group of workers in the country. For two years, the award-winning journalist Hsiao-Hung Pai traveled across China visiting labourers on Olympic construction sites, in the coal mines and brick kilns of the Yellow River region, and at the factories of the Pearl River Delta. She witnessed the outcome of the 2009 riots in the Muslim province of Xinjiang; saw towns in rubble more than a year after the colossal earthquake in Sichuan; and was reunited with long-lost relatives, estranged since her mother's family fled for Taiwan during the Civil War. Scattered Sand is the result of her travels: a finely wrought portrait of those left behind by China's dramatic social and economic advances.

Cultural Transplantation: The Writing of Classical Chinese Poetry in Colonial Singapore (1887–1945) Lap Lam, 2023-12-28 Classical-style poetry in modern China and other Sinitic-speaking localities is attracting greater attention with the recent upsurge in academic revision of modern Chinese literary history. Using the concept of cultural transplantation, this monograph attempts to illustrate the uniqueness, compatibility, and adaptability of classical Chinese poetry in colonial Singapore as well as its sustained connections with literary tradition and homeland. It demonstrates how the reading of classical Chinese poetry can better our understanding of Singapore's political, social, and cultural history, deepen knowledge of the transregional relationship between China and Nanyang, and fine-tune, redress, and enrich our perception of Singapore Chinese literature, Sinophone literature, the Chinese diaspora, and global Chinese identity.

Fine-grained Binary Code Authorship Analysis Xiaozhu Meng, 2018 Binary code authorship identification is the task of determining the authors of a binary program. It has significant application to forensic analysis of malicious software (malware), software supply chain risk management, and software plagiarism detection. The key message of this dissertation is that authorship identification techniques must be fine-grained and be able to identify multiple authors in a binary. This is because modern software, including malware, is typically developed by multiple programmers. The opposite side of authorship identification is to evade authorship identification. Authorship evasion has the goal of modifying a binary so that authorship identification would generate misleading results. Assessing authorship identification from an attacker's perspective is a key step for improving the robustness of authorship identification techniques. In this dissertation, we develop new fine-grained techniques for identifying authors of binary programs and new techniques for evading identification. We first describe our new techniques for deriving accurate source code authorship from software repositories, which serves as the foundation for deriving high quality ground truth for evaluating our new fine-grained techniques for binary code authorship identification. We then describe our new techniques for identifying multiple authors in a binary and our new techniques for reliably identifying multiple authors when the binaries are compiled by different compiler families, versions, and optimization levels. Last, from an attacker's perspective, we describe our new techniques for authorship evasion.

Metabolic and Senescence Characteristics Associated with the Immune Microenvironment in Tumor Cells Yewei Zhang, Houjuan Zhu, Qun Zhao, Chenyu Sun, 2024-04-11 A common feature of cancer metabolism is the ability to obtain essential nutrients from a nutrient-poor environment and use them to maintain viability as well as generate new biomass. Alterations in intracellular and extracellular metabolites can be accompanied by tumor-associated metabolic reprogramming with profound effects on gene expression, cell differentiation, and tumor microenvironment. In these cases, the metabolic microenvironment of the tumor itself can present an immunosuppressive environment that needs to be overcome. Specifically, it will help maximize the efficacy of cancer therapies by identifying targets that suppress or alter cancer metabolism to improve the tumor microenvironment nutrient availability or that modulate immune metabolism to bolster inflammation.

A Companion to Modern Chinese Literature Yingjin Zhang, 2015-08-07 This wide-ranging Companion provides a vital overview of modern Chinese literature in different geopolitical areas, from the 1840s to now. It reviews major accomplishments of Chinese literary scholarship published in Chinese and English and brings attention to previously neglected, important areas. Offers the most thorough and concise coverage of modern Chinese literature to date, drawing attention to previously neglected areas such as late Qing, Sinophone, and ethnic minority literature. Several chapters explore literature in relation to Sinophone geopolitics, regional culture, urban culture, visual culture, print media, and new media. The introduction and two chapters furnish overviews of the institutional development of modern Chinese literature in Chinese and English scholarship since the mid-twentieth century. Contributions from leading literary scholars in mainland China and Hong Kong add their voices to Changganli Jiwen, 2021-04-06 This story received Chinese National Best Network Novel Award for 2019. In the fictional Chinese city of Nandu, the ancient walls have enclosed the neighborhood of Changganli for 600 years. In the 1950s, as the citizens wanted to develop as fast as possible, "relics" like the city wall were deemed an obstacle to modernization and the order went out to dismantle it. But there are those who are willing to die to preserve the city's cultural heritage and the wall survives to become a vital element in the lives of five young friends who grow up in its shadow. Coming of age in the 1980s and moving on to college and their careers, these five friends then find themselves at odds about preserving their heritage and taking their fast-developing city into the next century, during the year 2018. As the heroes and heroines of Changganli grapple with the conflict over what is worth saving in a world that's changing so quickly, readers will find themselves just as conflicted over what's right and what's wrong. With nuanced and appealing characters and relationships; a white-hot conflict spanning generations; incidents of drama and horror; and deeply moving, star-crossed romances, Changganli introduces readers to the inestimable value and beauty of Chinese culture and tradition.

Shanghai baby Zhou Weihui, 2012-04-18 Da Shanghai, città multirazziale percorsa da nuovi fermenti, simbolo della Cina che cambia, arriva questo libro straordinario che si è affermato come un caso letterario clamoroso. Ha entusiasmato migliaia di giovani cinesi che vi si sono riconosciuti e lo hanno letto in massa. Coco è una venticinquenne ambiziosa e inquieta, ex giornalista e scrittrice, cameriera in un bar di Shanghai, che ama un ragazzo alto e bello, ma impotente ed eroinomane. Un giorno conosce un uomo d'affari tedesco, sposato, non esita a intrecciare con lui una rovente storia di sesso. Prigioniera di un gioco distruttivo, Coco rischia di andare alla deriva, ma trova nella vita la forza per riprendersi e affermarsi come scrittrice. Una storia estrema ed emozionante che dà voce a un'intera generazione di giovani cinesi di oggi.

Molecular Docking and Molecular Dynamics Amalia Stefaniu, 2019-12-18 This book clearly explains the principles of in silico tools of molecular docking and molecular dynamics. It provides examples of algorithms and procedures proposed by different software programs for visualizing and identifying potential interactions in complexes of biochemical interest. The book is structured in six chapters, each of which discusses different molecular simulation methodologies and provides concrete examples of complexes interactions. In each chapter authors give an overview of the treated subject, a description of the methodologies used, and a discussion of the results. The authors describe computational ways to achieve a rational design of bioactive compounds with various therapeutic applications, including antitumoral agents, antitubercular drugs, nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, and radiopharmaceuticals.
