Connecting the Dots Leonard Deddo, 2007-05

Connecting the Dots depicts one man's journey as he overcomes the nightmare of diabetes. Using his skills to understand it as a process, he not only manages to control the disease, he actually stumbles upon the root causes.

Christopher Paul Curtis Ann Gaines, 2005 For thirteen years, Christopher Paul Curtis made a good living at the Fisher Auto Body Plant in Flint, Michigan. Day in and day out, he hung doors on automobiles as they came down the line. He could support his family very well on his job, but the boredom was killing him. One day his wife, who was a nurse, offered to support the family while Christopher took a year off to work on a children's book. The result, The Watsons Go to Birmingham - 1963, would change his life. Published by Delacorte, it soon became an award winner. After his second book, Bud, Not Buddy was released and also became an award winner, Christopher Paul Curtis was able to do something he had always wanted. Write full-time. Book jacket.

Covina Swept Away Christopher S.

Chenault, 2012-09-11 Covina, Swept Away By Christopher S. Chenault, M. D. A number of towns in the Midwest and South have changed little over the last one hundred years. It is possible to return to one's hometown and see the town and many old landmarks little changed. This is not at all true of most of the towns of Southern California. Many areas of Southern California have been transformed from agricultural land to land for shopping centers and tract home over the past sixty years. The San Gabriel valley, east of Los Angeles, was the largest exporter of citrus fruit in the world in the 1930s and 1940s and had a hundred years history of agricultural use. In a period of fifteen years, 1950 to the mid-1960s, all of those vast acres of serene rural life were swept away in that wave of humanity that arrived after WW II to occupy the space for jobs, recreation, and raising families. There is now almost nothing left of that serenity. As a child in the 1940s and a teenager in the 1950s, I watched as this transformation progressed. We played hopscotch, marbles, and danced to the Mexican Hat Dance during grade school. We modified cars, went to the Sugar Bowl for sodas, and danced to Big Band sounds and Rock and Roll in high school. We watched drag races on Gladstone Avenue and at the Pomona drag strip. In poodle skirts and saddle shoes or corduroys and loafers, we live the 1950s in the residual of small town, agricultural Covina and witnessed a community go from one high school and two grammar schools in 1950 to add twenty-three new schools by the early 1960s. I have attempted to describe those years of tranquility, document our activities, and illustrated the varied attractions that would draw a family to that area. We were fortunate enough to experience swimming in the cool pacific, take trips to Arrowhead, Sequoia, and Kings Canyon, camp with the scouts at Cherry Cove on Catalina Island, Ski on Mount Baldy and go with groups of kids to Big Bear and the new Disneyland. We also endured the blackouts in Santa Barbara during WW

II and sugar rations collected at the City Hall In an autobiographical format, I have presented the move of my family to California and included the stories of families of my schoolmates whose ancestors immigrated to Southern California. And I have documented the activities of the time to give flavor to the area during this period that was to be the end of the one hundred year agricultural use of the land.

The Rogue to Nowhere ~ the Book of Travels by Jason Christopher Jason Christopher, 2018-07-04 Did you ever want something so bad that you would leave everything behind to get it? A Consumer's Guide to Toxic Food Additives Linda Bonvie, Bill Bonvie, 2020-03-17 Recognize, identify, and eliminate from your diet the most harmful ingredients, such as high fructose corn syrup, aluminum, carrageenan, and more, that you never knew you consumed every day! These days, the food on our tables is a far cry from what our grandparents ate. While it may look and taste the same and is often marketed under familiar brand names, our food has slowly but surely morphed into something entirely different—and a lot less benign. Ever wondered how bread manages to stay “fresh” on store shelves for so long? How do brightly colored cereals get those vibrant hues? Are artificial sweeteners really a healthy substitute for sugar? Whether you're an experienced label reader or just starting to question what's on your plate, A Consumer's Guide to Toxic Food Additives helps you cut through the fog of information overload. With current, updated research, A Consumer's Guide to Toxic Food Additives identifies thirteen of the most worrisome ingredients you might be eating and drinking every day. Learn about:

- The commonly used flavor enhancers you should avoid at all costs
- Two synthetic sweeteners that are wreaking havoc on the health of Americans in ways ordinary sugar does not
- Artificial colors and preservatives in your child's diet and how they have been linked directly to ADHD
- The "hidden" ingredients in most processed foods that were declared safe to consume without ever really being researched
- The hazardous industrial waste product that's in your food and beverages
- The toxic metal found in processed foods that has been linked to Alzheimer's
- The invisible meat and seafood ingredient that's more dangerous than "Pink Slime"

In a toxic world, educate yourself, change what you and your family eat, and avoid these poisons that are the known causes of our most prevalent health problems.

Lost in the Usa Christopher Otiko, 2006-08 Chris Otiko was being held at gun point by the stoned ex boyfriend of the girl he just had lost his virginity to when his life flashes before him as remembers the events that led an African born, British raised kid to this bizarre situation in rural Oklahoma. The story takes you back to the tragic Biafran War in Nigeria in the turbulent year of 1968 when Chris was born and where his family fled from after being cursed by a witchdoctor. Chris leads an idyllic boyhood in his London Years, but his life is destroyed when his father makes the mistake of moving the family back to Africa in the eighties. In this second part of the book: Return to Africa, Chris struggles to survive starvation, diseases, corruption and inhumane brutality in Nigeria before he fulfills his dream of coming to America. Chris's life then takes off as he chases his American Dreams of becoming a doctor and embarks on a bizarre series of adventures including, losing a close friend to AIDS, meeting a generous millionaire, posing nude, and even ruining Dr. Laura's day, all at the same time as holding down three jobs and searching love.

It's Not My Fault, But Here's What Happened

Christopher Cronin, 2017-03-01 My life's adventures were full of crazy twists, turns and self-discovery. The book depicts a tough Irish Catholic kid growing up in Boston who suffered from schizophrenia that enveloped most of his adult life from 17 until present. I married and divorced twice and raised three kids who I love with all my heart. I'm back in Hawaii enjoying my days keeping healthy; physically, spiritually, mentally and emotionally. My book takes you through a roller coaster ride from the beginning of my life until the present. I hope you read and enjoy where I am in life now, as I know at least you'll be entertained.

SKELETON Christopher Williams, 2016-12-05 This is a 6'3 tall tale. This is a pushing 400 pounds big fish tale. This is Fiction. This is Truth. This is Life. There are tough parts of life forced into the light, hard truths most would rather forget, past mistakes and failures. This is the story of a happy-go-lucky kid gone jade, a story of a man called Lucky by friends as a nickname, not because it is true. This is a hard truth. Sometimes told in half-truths, sometimes told in Fable.

Christopher Paul Curtis Judy Levin, 2006-01-01 As a blue-collar auto assembly-line worker, Christopher Paul Curtis dreamed of making it as an author. He caught the attention of a New York publishing house after submitting his manuscript in a fiction contest. Though he did not win, editors took note of his talent and asked him to adapt his historical novel for young people. A year later, his first novel, The Watsons Go to Birmingham? 1963, was published to critical acclaim. He has since earned a number of awards including the Newbery and a Coretta Scott King Award, and has legions of devoted fans.
