Our goal is to produce eBooks that are user-friendly and accessible to everyone in a high-quality digital format.

Diseases of the Eye Edward Nettleship,1890

Seeing Eye Stephen R. George,2016-07-25 BLINDSIGHT When an accident destroyed his eyesight a year ago, Campbell Knight resigned himself to endless darkness. Then suddenly he's handed a miracle: a once-in-a-lifetime chance to restore his vision. It's a secret experiment in which implants in his brain are linked to the optic nerves of Shadow, a seeing-eye dog. The operation is a success. There's just one unusual side effect. Campbell isn't viewing the world through his own eyes; he's seeing the world through Shadow's ...

Eye Chart William Germano,2017-09-07 Object Lessons is a series of short, beautifully designed books about the hidden lives of ordinary things. Desert nomads tested their vision by distinguishing a pair of stars. But we have since created more disquieting ways to test the strength of the eyes. Reading the eye chart is an exercise in failure, since it only gets interesting when you cannot read any further. It is the opposite of interpretative reading, like one does with literature. When you have finished reading an eye chart, what exactly have you even read? From a Spanish cleric's Renaissance guide to testing vision, to a Dutch ophthalmologist's innovation in optical tech, to the witty subversion of the eye chart in advertising and popular culture,

William Germano's Eye Chart lets people see the eye chart at last. Object Lessons is published in partnership with an essay series in The Atlantic.

Diseases of the Eye Marmaduke Stephen Mayou,1908

An Eye for an Eye Anthony Trollope,2013-06-13 At a private asylum in the west of England there lives, and has lived for some years past, an unfortunate lady, as to whom there has long since ceased to be any hope that she should ever live elsewhere. Indeed, there is no one left belonging to her by whom the indulgence of such a hope on her behalf could be cherished. Friends she has none; and her own condition is such, that she recks nothing of confinement and does not even sigh for release. And yet her mind is ever at work, -as is doubtless always the case with the insane. She has present to her, apparently in every waking moment of her existence, an object of intense interest, and at that she works with a constancy which never wearies herself, however fatiguing it may be to those who are near her. She is ever justifying some past action of her life. An eye for an eye, she says, and a tooth for a tooth. Is it not the law? And these words she will repeat daily, almost from morn till night. It has been said that this poor lady has no friends. Friends who would be anxious for her recovery, who would care to see her even in her wretched condition, who might try to soothe her harassed heart with words of love, she has none. Such is her condition now, and her temperament, that it may be doubted whether any words of love, however tender, could be efficacious with her. She is always demanding justification, and as those who are around her never thwart her she has probably all the solace which kindness could give her.
