Logical Reasoning Bradley Harris Dowden,1993 This book is designed to engage students' interest and promote their writing abilities while teaching them to think critically and creatively.

Dowden takes an activist stance on critical thinking, asking students to create and revise arguments rather than simply recognizing and criticizing them. His book emphasizes inductive reasoning and the analysis of individual claims in the beginning, leaving deductive arguments for consideration later in the course.

The Cambridge Handbook of Applied Perception Research Robert R. Hoffman, Peter A. Hancock, Mark W. Scerbo, Raja Parasuraman, James L. Szalma, 2015-01-26 The Cambridge Handbook of Applied Perception Research covers core areas of research in perception with an emphasis on its application to real-world environments. Topics include multisensory processing of information, time perception, sustained attention, and signal detection, as well as pedagogical issues surrounding the training of applied perception researchers. In addition to familiar topics, such as perceptual learning, the Handbook focuses on emerging areas of importance, such as human-robot coordination, haptic interfaces, and issues facing societies in the twenty-first century (such as terrorism and threat detection, medical errors, and the broader implications of automation). Organized into sections representing major areas of theoretical and practical importance for the application of perception psychology to human performance and the design and operation of human-technology interdependence, it also addresses the challenges to basic research, including the problem of quantifying information, defining cognitive resources, and theoretical advances in the nature of attention and perceptual processes.

Handbook of Biomedical Image Analysis David Wilson, Swamy Laxminarayan, 2007-04-25 Our goal is to develop automated methods for the segmentation of three-dimensional biomedical images. Here, we describe the segmentation of confocal microscopy images of bee brains (20 individuals) by registration to one or several atlas images. Registration is performed by a highly parallel implementation of an entropy-based nonrigid registration algorithm using B-spline transformations. We present and evaluate different methods to solve the correspondence problem in atlas based registration. An image can be segmented by registering it to an individual atlas, an average atlas, or multiple atlases. When registering to multiple atlases, combining the individual segmentations into a single segmentation can be achieved by atlas selection, or multiclassifier decision fusion.

We describe all these methods and evaluate these segmentation accuracies that they achieve by performing experiments with electronic phantoms as well as by comparing their outputs to a manual gold standard. The present work is focused on the mathematical and computational theory behind a technique for deformable image registration termed Hyperelastic Warping, and demonstration of the technique via applications in image registration and strain measurement. The approach combines well-established principles of nonlinear continuum mechanics with forces derived directly from three-dimensional image data to achieve registration. The general approach does not require the definition of landmarks, fiducials, or surfaces, although it can accommodate these if available. Representative problems demonstrate the robust and flexible nature of the approach. Three-dimensional registration methods are introduced for registering MRI volumes of the pelvis and prostate. The chapter first reviews the applications, xi xii Preface challenges, and previous methods of image registration in the prostate.
