Setting up Community Health and Development Programmes in Low and Middle Income Settings Ted Lankester, Nathan J. Grills, 2019-03-07 A majority of people living in rural areas and urban slums worldwide have minimal access to healthcare. Without information about what to give a child with stomach flu, how to relieve the pain of a broken bone, and how to work against increased substance abuse in a village, the whole community suffers. Children, adolescents, adults, and older people are all affected by the lack of what many of us view as basic healthcare, such as vaccination, pain killers, and contraceptives. To improve living conditions and life expectancy, the people in urban slums and rural areas need access to a trained health care worker, and a functioning clinic. Setting up Community Health and Development Programmes in Low and Middle Income Settings illustrates how to start, develop, and maintain a health care programme in poor areas across the world. The focus is on the community, and how people can work together to improve health through sanitation, storage of food, fresh water, and more. Currently, there is a lack of 17 million trained health care workers worldwide. Bridging the gap between medical professionals and people in low income areas, the aim of this book is for a member of the community to receive training and become the health care worker in their village. They will then in turn spread information and set up groups working to improve health. The book also explains in detail how communities can work alongside experts to ensure that practices and processes work effectively to bring the greatest impact. Copiously illustrated and written in easy-to-read English, this practical guide is designed to be extremely user friendly. Ideal for academics, students, programme managers, and health care practitioners in low and middle income settings worldwide, it is an evidence based source full of examples from the field. Setting up Community Health and Development Programmes in Low and Middle Income Settings shows how a community can both identify and solve its own problems, and in that way own its future. Nutrition and Mental Health Ruth Leyse-Wallace, 2013-01-29 Although primary advanced vitamin and mineral deficiencies are rare in the developed world, many common health conditions deplete nutritional status, including sub-optimal dietary intake, frequent alcohol consumption, changes in appetite due to aging, food allergies or sensitivities, special diets, and eating disorders. Covering topics as diverse as aging, the brain, eating habits, genetics, lifestyle, nutrients, and psychology, this book brings together two extremely complex aspects of life—human nutrition and mental health. Organized by mental health concern as well as nutrient group, Nutrition and Mental Health reviews the scientific literature from many fields of science: health, psychology, nutrition, mental well-being, and the interface with chronic disease. It provides a straightforward, readable report of broadly selected scientific research on how various nutrients affect mental health. Professional resources are provided in easy-to-access tables as well as suggested formats for assessing nutritional status and guidelines for interpretation. Chapter summaries, a descriptive table of contents, an index, and glossary assist the reader in finding specific topics of interest. A variety of mental health conditions may affect a person's ability and interest in getting and eating a well-rounded selection of foods. An examination of the role diet plays in mental health, this book reviews the scientific literature from many fields of science: health, psychology, nutrition, mental well-being, and chronic disease management.

Fitter for Life Ed Mayhew, 2005-07 Discover the Secrets of the Masters of Fitness: How a 54-year-old man who struggled to jog a single quarter mile got in good enough shape and summoned the energy to run 109 miles at the 24Hour Endurance Run National Championships ? at age 77. How a 40-year-old, full-time working mother with four young children made time to train as a 2-sport national champion ? all the while keeping her family priority one. How a lifelong heavy smoker and self-proclaimed couch potato in her forties transformed herself into an Ironman triathlete in her fifties. How a 59-year-old man just four and a half months removed from a near-fatal heart attack and double-by-pass surgery was able to complete one of the most grueling races ever run. How a 64-year-old with a cholesterol reading of 385dl/mg, arrhythmia (an irregular heart beat) and no background in competitive swimming was able to turn herself into a World Champion age-group swimmer. How a woman crippled by arthritis was able to beat the disease without resorting to drugs. Why most weight-loss and exercise programs fail and how the Masters of Fitness avoided this common pitfall and how you can, too. Which foods, drinks, supplements and herbs played the greatest role in the amazing athletic feats of the Masters of Fitness. Think these thoughts and you will age slower, but think THESE thoughts and you'll age faster. How the Masters of Fitness get their bodies to release more youth-enhancing Human Growth Hormone (Hgh) naturally and how you can, too.

Democratisation, Governance and Regionalism in East and Southeast Asia Ian Marsh, 2006-09-27 This new collection of essays compares the development of central institutions of governance in the emerging democracies of East and South East Asia. Seven key countries are covered: Taiwan, Korea, Thailand, Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines. Save for Singapore and Malaysia, all have democratized over the past decade. Because of its constitutive implications for citizen identities, democratization is arguably of even greater potential significance than the economic take-off that preceded it. But there are distinctive features that give the experience of these seven states especial relevance. First, unlike analogous western patterns, democratic transitions in Asia have been top-down in character. Second, the implementation of basic democratic forms was highly compressed in time. Third there were (and are), in most countries, no major ideological or programmatic cleavages. Thus the bases around which contending political forces might organize are not immediately clear. This may affect the outlook for partisanship and mobilization. There has been no synoptic, comparative study of these developments on a region-wide scale. This book fills the gap extremely well.

Spirituality and Human Psyche Nandita Chaube, 2015-11-30 This book represents an introduction to spirituality and various psychic phenomena such as reiki, dj vu, dreams, religion, and spiritual healing etc. This book also attempts to establish comprehensive understanding of these complex phenomena which are usually linked with spiritual experiences. While trying to unfold some mysteries this book serves as a chance for the contemporary researchers to explore the research areas to fulfill the gap. Written by substantial writers this book puts these less focused aspects altogether to provide them a platform for further research.
